Dear Friends:

I am writing to solicit your help in identifying outstanding candidates for two postdoctoral positions in my laboratory. Please bring this to the attention of your students and kindly distribute this e-mail among your colleagues, as you see fit.

A brief description of the positions is given below:

Synthetic Organic/Medicinal Chemists: Two postdoctoral positions in synthetic organic chemistry/medicinal chemistry are available. The qualified applicant would have a Ph.D. in synthetic chemistry and would be knowledgeable of modern synthetic techniques and structure analysis. He/she should be able to perform multiple-step syntheses of molecules designed as potential antibiotics, or probes of mechanisms of action of enzymes involved in antibiotic resistance. Knowledge of enzyme chemistry and/or medicinal chemistry principles is desirable but not required. The work environment is multidisciplinary and the successful candidates will have the opportunity to work among a large group of scientists of similar interests within my group.

South Bend, Indiana, is a college town and a wonderful place live. The cost of living is relatively low, so students and postdocs enjoy a higher standard of living compared to other locations. The city is within 1.5 hours of Chicago by car and there are regular train and air service as well.

Interested candidates should e-mail their curriculum vitae, along with the names of three individuals who would be able to write letters of recommendations on their behalf to the address below:
